

LEŠO MOL BAND BROUGHT THE HOUSE DOWN!

When yachtsmen start jamming...

Plateau in front of the club cafe was not big enough on Friday night. The reason for it was the first public performance of a band with a very significant name Lešo mol (Boiled cod).

At first glance there is nothing strange in this story, 4 guys playing music from the 60s and 70s, and nothing else.

But the reason why everyone wanted to hear them is the fact that this band is comprised of four yachtsmen.

Lead vocalist and guitarist Aron Lolić, acoustic guitarist and surfer Uroš Pavlović, wind-surfer Nikola Smoljenović on the bass guitar and Daniel Mihelić from laser class behind the drums.

Guys started their set while the crowds cheered on to help them with their obvious stage fright. They played one song after another even though they had to tune their instruments between each song.

— We're sorry, we haven't really had the chance to practice so... Aron tried to make excuses but the crowd didn't mind.

They all wanted to hear the guys and were more than pleasantly surprised.

— We don't have a very wide repertoire so we will have to take a short break now - Aron once again cooled down the crowd but the guys returned to the improvised stage in no time again followed by the loud cheers from the audience.

— This is their first performance but they're great – Mario Stipinović commented while tapping his feet to the rhythm of the music.

Everyone else followed the band, some clapped, some sang along, some tapped their feet.

This is what happens at Yacht parties when yachtsmen jam and sing, great times are always guaranteed.

9. SPLIT OLYMPIC SAILING WEEK
COMES TO IT END

See you all next year!

Dear yachtsmen, coaches, umpires and guests!
 We hope you've enjoyed your week here in Split as much as you have enjoyed our regatta.

We also hope you are satisfied with the results, but most of all our intention was to make you feel welcome in our city, our club and on our regatta.

Therefore all that is left for us to do is invite you to join us next year for the 10th International regatta Split Olympic Sailing Week!

And to remind you of the great times we shared last week and to extend another invitation to join us next year, we have prepared a photo-gallery with the best moments both from the sea and the mainland.

Enjoy...
